2 Things Mainstream Media Didn't Tell You About FDA's Approval of Pfizer Vaccine

Buried in the fine print of Monday's approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration of the Pfizer Comirnaty COVID vaccine are two critical facts that affect whether the vaccine can be mandated, and whether Pfizer can be held liable for injuries.

The press reported that vaccine mandates are now legal for military, healthcare workers, college students and employees in many industries. New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio has now required the vaccine for all teachers and school staff. The Pentagon is proceeding with its mandate for all military service members.

But there are several bizarre aspects to the FDA approval that will prove confusing to those not familiar with the pervasiveness of the FDA's regulatory capture, or the depths of the agency's cynicism.

First, the FDA acknowledges that while Pfizer has "insufficient stocks" of the newly licensed Comirnaty vaccine available, there is "a significant amount" of the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID vaccine — produced under Emergency Use Authorization (EUA) — still available for use.

The FDA decrees that the Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine under the EUA should remain unlicensed but can be used "interchangeably" (page 2, footnote 8) with the newly licensed Comirnaty product.

ORDER TODAY: Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.'s New Book — 'The Real Anthony Fauci'

Second, the FDA pointed out that the licensed Pfizer Comirnaty vaccine and the existing, EUA Pfizer vaccine are "legally distinct," but proclaims that their differences do not "impact safety or effectiveness."

There is a huge real-world difference between products approved under EUA compared with those the FDA has fully licensed.

EUA products are experimental under U.S. law. Both the Nuremberg Code and federal regulations provide that no one can force a human being to participate in this experiment. Under 21 U.S. Code Sec.360bbb-3\(e\)\(1\)\(A\)\(ii\)\(III\), "authorization for medical products for use in emergencies," it is unlawful to deny someone a job or an education because they refuse to be an experimental subject. Instead, potential recipients have an absolute right to refuse EUA vaccines.

U.S. laws, however, permit employers and schools to require students and workers to take licensed vaccines.

EUA-approved COVID vaccines have an extraordinary liability shield under the 2005 Public Readiness and Preparedness Act. Vaccine manufacturers, distributors, providers and government planners are immune from liability. The only way an injured party can sue is if he or she can prove willful misconduct, and if the U.S. government has also brought an enforcement action against the party for willful misconduct. No such lawsuit has ever succeeded.

Ok Privacy policy

The government has created an extremely stingy compensation program, the Countermeasures Injury Compensation Program, to redress injuries from all EUA products. The program's parsimonious administrators have compensated under 4% of petitioners to date — and not a single COVID vaccine injury — despite the fact that physicians, families and injured vaccine recipients have reported more than 600,000 COVID vaccine injuries.

At least for the moment, the Pfizer Comirnaty vaccine has no liability shield. Vials of the branded product, which say "Comirnaty" on the label, are subject to the same product liability laws as other U.S. products.

When the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's (CDC) Advisory Committee for Immunization Practices places a vaccine on the mandatory schedule, a childhood vaccine benefits from a generous retinue of liability protections.

But licensed adult vaccines, including the new Comirnaty, do not enjoy any liability shield. Just as with Ford's exploding Pinto, or Monsanto's herbicide Roundup, people injured by the Comirnaty vaccine could potentially sue for damages.

And because adults injured by the vaccine will be able to show that the manufacturer knew of the problems with the product, jury awards could be astronomical.

Pfizer is therefore unlikely to allow any American to take a Comirnaty vaccine until it can somehow arrange immunity for this product.

Given this background, the FDA's acknowledgement in its approval letter that there are insufficient stocks of the licensed Comirnaty, but an abundant supply of the EUA Pfizer BioNTech jab, exposes the "approval" as a cynical scheme to encourage businesses and schools to impose illegal jab mandates.

The FDA's clear motivation is to enable Pfizer to quickly unload inventories of a vaccine that science and the Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System have exposed as unreasonably dangerous, and that the Delta variant has rendered obsolete.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr
@RobertKennedyJr

They know they can't win this argument on the science and that's why they had to abolish the public process and independent oversight.

FDA Grants Full Approval of Pfizer Vaccine, Critics Blast Agency for Maki...
Critics said it was concerning that full approval was based on only six months' worth of data — despite clinical trials designed for two years —...

Americans, told that the Pfizer COVID vaccine is now licensed, will understandably assume COVID vaccine mandates are lawful. But only EUA-authorized vaccines, for which no one has any real liability, will be available during the next few weeks when many school mandate deadlines occur.

The FDA appears to be purposefully tricking American citizens into giving up their right to refuse an experimental product.

While the media has trumpeted that the FDA has approved COVID vaccines, the FDA has not approved the Pfizer BioNTech vaccines, nor any COVID vaccines for the 12- to 15-year age group, nor any booster doses for anyone.

And the FDA has not licensed any Moderna vaccine, nor any vaccine from Johnson & Johnson — so the vast majority, if not all, of vaccines available in the U.S. remain unlicensed EUA products.

Here's what you need to know when somebody orders you to get the vaccine: Ask to see the vial. If it says "Comirnaty," it's a licensed product.

If it says "Pfizer-BioNTech," it's an experimental product, and under 21 U.S. Code 360bbb, you have the right to refuse.

If it comes from Moderna or Johnson & Johnson (marketed as Janssen), you have the right to refuse.

The FDA is playing bait and switch with the American public — but we don't have to play along. If it doesn't say Comirnaty, you have not been offered an approved vaccine.

Seriously? Americans are not protected and our government could care less. We can all just roll up and die for all they care. geez. I saw this a bit when I lived overseas, the differences in the ways the consulate's offices treated their citizens. But how many smacks in the face are we Americans willing to put up with? How come we are walking like sheep going to the slaughter? Silently? My son lives in Europe and said, "Mom, you have to get out of there." I thought, more easier said than done.

Perhaps Denmark, which just outlawed all corona measures. When it comes to this "plandemic", Danish citizens are free to choose and act as they wish, beginning October 1.

And, just recently, nearly 50% of the doctors in Germany who were administering the vaccines stopped doing so.

It may not be time to give up and completely lose hope just yet.

There actually are place where people are done with this. Italy, France...there is video of people there in parade like fashion making their way along streets taking a very peaceful stand, and footage of them burning the "cards" in support of those who were being coerced.

But you won't see that on mainstream anything. Bitchute is still uncensored. We don't have that kind of resolve cause we don't have relatives relating to us firsthand what Nazi Germany was like.

Japan would be an option if you're able to get residency. Their ministry of health, labor and welfare specifies on their COVID webpage that although the vaccine is encouraged, it is not mandatory or compulsory and there are side effects individuals must take into account if they are deciding to get vaccinated. In addition, no one should discriminate against those who are not vaccinated and vaccinated individuals must not pressure those who are not vaccinated to get vaccinated esp in the workplace and in the public setting. Wild huh?

That'll end once people stop patronizing companies that discriminate. Russia did that and everything stopped w this garbage because of it. The virus lost its strength once businesses began suffering due to being tyrannical participants. Amazing....all took to end their pandemic was people refusing to participate. In Alberta all it took was one court hearing. Look it up.

Don't come up here to Canada. We are just as bad as America and maybe worse with a Communist PM as Leader in a supposedly "free" country. What a joke. So many lame duck Canadians just lying low or surrendering to the satanic jab just to keep their jobs. That's medical blackmail. I hear Hungary is quite normal and has a great President.

Our trust in the medical industry is also based on lies and propaganda. The rate of chronic disease has increased enormously over the last 30 years, but they tell us we are healthier and we believe them. They made us trust them so they can lead us to our slaughter.
